

Lindores Abbey

Country:	Scotland
Region:	Fife, Lowlands
Producer:	The Lindores Abbey Distilling Co
Range:
Bottling:	Distillery Bottling
Style:	Single Malt Whisky
Water Source	Borehole
Owner	Andrew McKenzie Smith
Status	Operational
Age:	+ 3 years
Cask Type:	Bourbon, Sherry and Wine Barriques
Colour:	Pale Gold
Flavour Profile:	Orchard Fruits
Allergens:	Not known
Bottle size:	70cl - abv: 46%

Lindores Abbey's widely recognised links to the earliest written reference to Scotch Whisky, mean that people have been travelling to this quiet corner of Fife for centuries. After a 500-year break, these whisky pilgrims will finally be able to see Single Malt distillation happening once again on this historic site

The Story of Lindores Abbey Distillery

Lindores Abbey, or "Church by the Water", is situated on the outskirts of Newburgh. The abbey was founded in 1191 by David Earl of Huntingdon on land overlooking the Estuary of the River Tay. It was once an important and wealthy place, welcoming kings and queens. William Wallace, a national hero and leader of the Scottish resistance forces during the First War of Scottish Independence, once took refuge at Lindores Abbey with 300 of his men

At first glance, Newburgh is an unassuming town in the county of Fife, Scotland. The downtown doesn't have many distinguishing features; there are a few pubs, a pharmacy, a café, and you can get Chinese takeout. Its population of just over 2,000 has been mostly steady for over a century.

And yet, Newburgh should be of particular interest to any Scotch whisky drinker. It is the birthplace of Scotch whisky, after all.

Taste with Water

NOSE: Elegant, soft, mellow vanilla, caramel notes playing with orchard fruits and sweet pear drops. Reminiscent of toffee apples!

PALLETTE: Smooth with a creamy texture and a perfect balance of mellow vanilla, dried fruits, citrus touches with a hint of spice.

BODY: Sweet, overall. Viscous, but fresh and clean: a pleasant acidity helps to maintain this.

FINISH: Medium length, delicate but lingering finish

STYLE: A fruity spicy Single Malt Whisky

