Beautifully balanced intensified fruity aromas, with a touch of oak

Built in 1798, Scotland's most Northern distillery and continues to malt its own barley using the traditional floor malting method and to kiln dry the 'green' malt using peat cut from its own moorlands. One of the few distilleries where you can still see and smell smoke wafting from its pagoda style chimneys.

Cattie Maggie is the underground spring that feeds a former quarry close to Highland Park. The spring and quarry are named after a tinker who lived in the vicinity. The water is pure and very hard, rising through a sedimentary rock of hard sandstone known as Wallirwall.

Taste with water

NOSE: Sweet with floral/fruity aromas soft fruit sweets. Some smoky/peaty/earthy elements.

PALATE: Smoke with sweet, perfumed hints. The sherry fruitiness slowly arrives.

BODY: Mellow

FINISH: Slightly fruity

STYLE: Full of Highland Park character - with an extra softness from the years in the cask
